TRAINER: Dirt(114 .08 $1.32) Sprint(96 .07 $1.43) Claim(102 .06 $1.25)

Takes a slight drop in class after closing for minor awards in her recent starts; is usually closing with a rush, but she often falls short of victory, having lost her last 12 starts in a row; the pace could work against her this time since few of her rivals possess speed and the TimeformUS Pace Projector is predicting a scenario favoring front-runners; on the plus side, she gets a positive rider switch to Tyler Gaffalione and seems fairly reliable in a race where many are lacking in the consistency department; contender.

Is the only one in for the lower $8k tag as she continues to descend the class ladder; got the job done in a weak maiden claiming event back in January but she's struggled in two starts against winners, most recently losing as the 3-2 favorite going this distance; figures to show speed and may even be quick enough to clear off on the front end; that running style alone makes her worth a look since the TimeformUS Pace Projector is predicting a situation favoring front-runners; however, she still needs to produce a career-best performance to come away with the victory; mixed signals.

Late runner drops in class and cuts back to 6 furlongs; the softer competition should benefit her, as she's struggled against stronger fields in all four starts since breaking her maiden in her career debut; yet she finished behind today's favorite Taalkthetalk on Feb. 2 and may again be facing an unfavorable pace setup here; gets a rider switch to a promising apprentice, but she'll need every benefit from that weight allowance in order to turn the tables on the rail runner; a possibility.

Broke her maiden going a mile here back in December with a 59 Beyer, a number that puts her in the conversation against this group; yet she moved immediately to turf thereafter and has hasn't tried dirt since; now switches back to a sprint on the main track after progressively shortening up on the grass; did close to be 2nd in her career debut going a sprint distance once upon a time, but she'll have to show a bit more speed to be competitive against this crew; encouraging to see Victor Lebron keep the mount on one of the more intriguing contenders in an otherwise straightforward affair; one to consider. -David Aragona

CLOSER LOOK: Ran fairly well in that minor turf stakes two back; got jostled leaving the gate and was very rank around the clubhouse turn before settling into a good trip, but just couldn't muster a rally in the lane; switched back to dirt last time but little went right, as she was squeezed back at the start and couldn't sustain a premature move into contention on the far turn; getting back to turf makes some sense and she fits from a class perspective, but it seems like the mile distance may be a bit far for her; not impossible if the trip works out.

 Turf is clearly her preferred surface, but she's going to have to run a bit faster to put herself in the conversation for a top prize against this group; finished third at this level last time after racing 3-wide for much of her trip, but this race has come up a bit tougher than that one; looking elsewhere for the winner.

Held her form fairly well in her first start since being claimed away from the Pletcher barn last time; yet she got a great ground-saving trip and couldn't really accelerate in the stretch, just barely getting up for second with a mild run; nevertheless, that 63 Beyer is the highest last-out fig in the field and she figures to get another solid setup from off the pace given the speed signed on here; the one major negative is that she loses jockey Luis Saez to Hartling.

Comes in on quite a roll, having won 4 consecutive starts across multiple surfaces; that 59 Beyer she earned two back suggests that she may actually be best on turf; yet she's stepping up to face the toughest field of her career after having it pretty easy against cheaper rivals; it's a good sign that Luis Saez lands back here in a race where he had at least one other strong option; yet he will have to work out a trip since she prefers to be forwardly placed and there is some speed drawn to the outside; has a chance to make it 5 straight, but it won't be easy.

Looked like one with a future when she easily coasted to victory in her debut against maiden claimers going this distance; was rained off in two starts after than and only just got back on the grass last time in a starter allowance; that effort looks disappointing at first glance, but she was hindered by drawing the outside post in an 11-horse field and didn't get the most comfortable trip in a race that was dominated on the front end; still think there's more ability here than we've seen recently and she figures to get a better pace setup this time; don't underestimate this one.

Nearly pulled off a shocking upset at 50-1 two back when just run down by Queen of God, who returned to win the Bourbonette Oaks on synth at Turfway; speedy gal was forced to rate behind eventual winner Yolanda's Pride last time and could never reel that one win while nevertheless holding on well for 3rd; has developed into a decent turf miler and that 65 Beyer two back is the highest turf fig in the field; if she can avoid getting caught up in a swift pace she figures to be right there at the end; contender.

Finished in a dead heat for 3rd with La Rusia last time and now will leave the gate right alongside her; was a bit of a surprise that day, as she was sent off at 42-1 off a series of cheap maiden claiming efforts; a repeat of that most recent performance puts her in the mix, but she could the these circumstances to be a bit less favorable; the outside post isn't ideal and she's exiting a race that was dominated by front-runners; possible for a slice if all goes right. -David Aragona

CLOSER LOOK: Plenty of pedigree as a daughter of Curlin (progeny's average winning distance of 7.5 furlongs) out of Grade 2-winning dirt miler Sign; showed good speed in first route start and was pressed hard by favored Kapiolani; left that horse in the dust entering the turn and think she went for home a bit too early with a very fast third split; had a clear lead at the sixteenth pole, but was run down late by a longshot that had a favorable setup; fifth-finisher came back to run third on turf with a 70 Beyer; expect Rosario to utilize this filly's speed again considering her excellent inside post position; would really benefit from a slower pace and the shorter stretch of this route distance; capable, but might fit best on bottom of single-race exotics.

Has the pedigree to endure this two-turn route as a daughter of War Front (AWD of 7.2 furlongs) and multiple Grade 2-winning dirt router Frivolous; finished ahead of three next-out winners in fast maiden special weight over sloppy going at Churchill on November 30 (fifth-finisher returned to win her next two at Oaklawn with Beyers of 77 and 82, respectively); good effort in seasonal debut going short; bobbed at the start, recovered to push a four-ply pace from the rail, was shuffled back a bit into a tight pocket, seemed a bit uncomfortable trying to come through a tight spot inside at the three-sixteenths and finished well when clear; enough tactical speed to work out a nice stalking trip from this good inside post; contender.

CLOSER LOOK: Earned a new top figure when cutting a sensible pace and failing to hold two starts back while going longer, then turned back to this distance last time and readily overpowered the pacesetter in the stretch to score easily while pairing up that Beyer top; seemed to enjoy the return to sprinting in that win and is a threat to go back to back for a hot trainer, though she will likely have to deal with a quicker pace this time.

Speedy 6yo is returning from a 147-day layoff while stepping up in class but she has the early speed to make the front in this race, and that is always an advantage in turf sprints over this distance; has won four of her eleven starts since Baxter has taken over (two on the main track in races that were rained off the turf, and two over this distance on grass - all four in wire to wire fashion); threat right on the front end.

Newly-turned 4yo did little running in her local debut back in February but that was her first start off a 249-day layoff and it may be wise to give her that race based on her form as a 3yo; faced stakes rivals last June and was in contention into the upper-stretch before weakening and getting outfinished, and she ran well with competitive figures in the first two starts of her career on synthetic; not an easy spot but she is eligible to improve with her 2020 debut out of the way.

Like Miss Behave, she was off the long layoff last time and she ran very well in that race to be clearly second-best to a dominant winner after encountering trouble on the backstretch; has yet to run a poor race from four starts sprinting on turf and is going to be tough in here if she can work out a better trip this time.

 Weakened in her 2020 debut back in January but that race was over a mile and featured a modest pace, both of which worked against her; didn't have a great winter own here in 2019 wither, also while going longer distances, but she really turned things around when turned back to sprint last summer; posted back to back wins in June and August while putting in strong finishes from off the pace in those races and she continued to run well through the end of the year in races that didn't set up well for her; closer needs some pace but will expect her to come running if she gets some.

 Her nine career wins give her a major advantage over much of this field and this tactical mare is also admirably consistent; struggles a bit at this level, as was the case last time when stepped up and settling for 3rd behind Dixieincandyland, even while running well in that spot; has won six in a row vs. claimers, all of them over this distance, and she projects for the right kind of trip in here; contender but not one to take too short of a price on.

Finished behind two of these same rivals last time after getting away last and then failing to make much of a run, but it may be wise to give her a pass for that one based on the layoff and her overall form from last year; she has never won a race on grass but she was competitive on this surface last summer while earning figures that fit with this bunch and she can easily improve in her second start back.

Newly turned 3yo is making her turf debut vs. some quality rivals while giving away experience and she is going to have to improve significantly in order to win this; sire Munnings connects with 13% of is turf sprinters but there isn't much turf on the bottom of this pedigree - her unraced dam has four prior foals with two of them being minor winners (one of them won on turf over $12.5k maiden claimers with a 45 Beyer); in tough. -Mike Beer
